Safety at UAF

Loss prevention

The Loss Prevention Program helps increase awareness of safety and provide mechanisms for campuses to invest in loss prevention projects that reduce injuries and losses. Visit the website for additional information on how to apply and what is covered.

Workers’ compensation:
Loss Prevention Funds might cover a lifting device or training.

University property:
Loss prevention may cover surveillance cameras or lock-down devices.

Automobile liability:
Funding may be available for training or backup cameras.

Employment Practices Liability:
Funds could cover discrimination awareness training for supervisors.

General liability:
A loss-prevention project might help reduce injuries from slipping.

Visit the website for a complete list of what’s covered.

www.uaf.edu/safety/

When it comes to safety, we need to look out for each other, and in doing so we may help prevent a serious injury. Please share the following information.

- Complete your safety training.
- Know UAF’s emergency preparedness procedures.
- If you see something unsafe, fix it if you can, otherwise notify your supervisor or fill out an Unsafe Condition Report on the EHSRM website.
- Update your information at http://uafalert.alaska.edu to receive emergency notifications.
- Call a community service officer at 474-7721 to escort you to your car or any building on campus.
- Review your building or department emergency action plan.

Safety awareness incentive program — www.uaf.edu/safety/

UAF has established a safety awareness incentive program to improve safety and reduce workplace accidents. Employees are eligible to win awards when they participate in the following:

- Complete all required safety training.
- Submit a loss-prevention application.
- Submit an Unsafe Condition Report.
- Submit a completed Job Hazard Analysis.
- Are observed working in a safe manner or promoting safety.
- Answer monthly safety questions posted at www.uaf.edu/safety/

Whistleblower protection

The Whistleblower Protection Program affords employees certain rights against employer retaliatory treatment if they engage in protected acts, including participating in safety and health activities, reporting a work-related injury, illness, or death, or any practice that is prohibited by law.

www.whistleblowers.gov/

Loss prevention

The Loss Prevention Program helps increase awareness of safety and provide mechanisms for campuses to invest in loss prevention projects that reduce injuries and losses. Visit the website for additional information on how to apply and what is covered.

www.uaf.edu/safety/