1992

The vegetable display garden demonstrates the wide variety of vegetables which can be grown in the Interior and shows some of the cultural techniques which can be used to increase production. Vegetable varieties which were developed at the Experiment Station, such as 'Yukon Chief' sweetcorn and 'Early Tanana' tomato, are grown in the garden, in addition to outstanding varieties from the variety trials conducted here from 1978-85 and newer promising varieties. Recent All-America Selections winners are also displayed here. Some of the vegetables are seeded directly in the ground and others are grown in our greenhouse and transplanted outside in early June. Due to our late spring, the garden was not seeded this year until early June, about two weeks later than usual, and the transplants went in about one week late.

Note the 'salad square' in the center of the garden which contains lettuce, greens, herbs and edible flowers which might be used in salads.

Special thanks to the following seed companies for providing seed to us without charge this year: Ball Seed Co., W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Johnny's Selected Seeds, Geo. W. Park Seed Co., Stokes Seeds and Vaughan's Seed Co.
