

Table 4.1a Outcomes Assessment Implementation Summary Bachelor of Arts Degree
	Academic Year
	2010-2011	2011-2012	2012-2013
Assessment information collected	Nine students were surveyed and three responded. One works in a graphic arts field. Two are employed outside of the art field but are creating art. One works for UAF in Marketing.	Twelve students were surveyed and information was gathered from five graduates. One graduate has completed a Masters degree in Art History and has been accepted into a Ph.D. program. One student is obtaining her teaching credentials so that she can teach art at the high school level. One student has recently been hired as a policeman in a small Appalachian town. One graduate is pursuing a health care degree. One graduate works in graphic design in the local apparel industry. Students have responded that they continue to produce art for personal and professional exhibition.	Eleven students were surveyed. One student has been accepted into a Masters program in cross cultural studies. One student is obtaining a biology degree. One student is employed locally in the commercial industry. Students have responded that they continue to produce art for personal and professional exhibition.
Conclusions drawn from the information collected above	UAF Art BA graduates enjoy success in many aspects of their art careers, i.e., acceptance into graduate programs, employment in art-related positions, and participate actively in a variety of exhibition opportunities.	UAF Art BA graduates enjoy success in many aspects of their art careers, i.e., acceptance into graduate programs, employment in art-related positions, and participate actively in a variety of exhibition opportunities.	UAF Art BA graduates enjoy success in many aspects of their art careers, i.e., acceptance into graduate programs, employment in art-related positions, and participate actively in a variety of exhibition opportunities.
Curricular changes resulting from conclusions drawn above	No curricular changes warranted	No curricular changes warranted	No curricular changes warranted