

UAF CENTER FOR STUDENT ENGAGEMENT

SPRING SPEAKER SERIES

FEB
2019 07

MANDY HARRIS WILLIAMS

#BROWNPUPYOURFEED: GETTING FED BY YOUR FEED

An image says a thousand words and reifies hundreds of concepts. An image indicates tens of race, gender and interactive structures in how it is conceived, created, distributed and attended to. This talk asks us to examine why we follow what we do, and more importantly, how it is serving us. Many of us use Instagram with automaticity, not acknowledging that the images we are feeding ourselves work against our self esteem and value system. How can we design our followed media to sustain and augment our self esteem?

7-8PM WOOD CENTER BALLROOM *OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

MAR
2019 20

RYAN HAWK
EXCELLENCE

Ryan began his leadership career playing quarterback in high school, college, and professionally. His talk, Excellence, draws on his sport experiences as well as his 12 year career in the corporate world, and his 300+ recorded conversations with the world's most thoughtful and excellent leaders – published as a podcast on iTunes and all podcast directories: <http://www.learningleader.com/>

5:30-7PM WOOD CENTER BALLROOM *OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

APR
2019 13

ALOK VAID-MENON (THEY/THEM)
STUDENT ACTIVISM INTENSIVE

How can students be in solidarity with social movements happening off campus? How can students more strategically engage with political issues happening on campus? How can students doing anti-oppression work ensure sustainability and avoid burnout? Integrating both theory and practice this is a tactical workshop for student activists interested in leveraging their position in universities for social justice.

2-3PM WOOD CENTER E/F

*LIMITED SPACE AVAILABLE FOR UAF STUDENTS. RSVP ON ORGSYNC

FEMME IN PUBLIC

What feminine part of yourself did you have to destroy in order to survive in this world? At what point does femininity become synonymous with apology? Who hurt the people who hurt you? Alok Vaid-Menon is trying to figure it out. Join them for an evening of poetry, stand-up comedy, drag, and more as they take their audience on an emotional roller coaster all the way from the personal to the political.

6:30-8:30PM WOOD CENTER BALLROOM *OPEN TO THE PUBLIC