COURSE DESCRIPTION: Beginning Ceramics provides a foundation experience with clay. This class will focus on the basic methods of hand building construction: pinch, coil and slab. Projects will include utilitarian and sculptural forms. Students will learn basic glazing and firing techniques. Students will learn to incorporate basic elements of art and principles of design into their ceramic projects.

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES:

Upon the successful completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- Utilize basic ceramic techniques (pinch, coil and slab building) in the creation of utilitarian and sculptural ceramic forms.
- Explore basic surface decorating techniques (slip decoration and glaze)
- apply those techniques incorporating basic elements of art and principles of design.
- Safely use basic ceramic materials
- safely use basic ceramic equipment (mixer, pugmill, extruder, kilns)
- Critically discuss their personal artwork and that of others.

COURSE READINGS/MATERIALS:

There is no required textbook for this course. If you want to have a good basic book on ceramics, I recommend one of the following: Working with Clay by Susan Peterson; Craft and Art of Clay by Susan Peterson; or Hands in Clay by Charlotte Speight.

I will provide required reading materials for each project via google drive. I will post suggested readings to the "links" section of the class website

TECHNOLOGY REQUIREMENTS

Students must have regular access to a computer and the internet. Students must be able to use Zoom, Google Drive, Google Slides, Blackboard and a basic web browser. Students will be expected to download course material and upload photos and assignments to google drive. All reading materials and assignment sheets will be provided via google drive. Demonstration videos will be posted to a class website.

<https://sites.google.com/alaska.edu/uafceramics/>. Grades and feedback will be posted to Blackboard. All announcements will be sent to your alaska.edu email address. Due Dates will be posted to google calendar.

MATERIALS/SUPPLIES

Basic Pottery tool kit; Serrated rib or fork; Variety of brushes; small bucket for water; Large sponge to clean up; Clear plastic to cover your work; Sketchbook; You may need to purchase additional tools for some projects. You might want to have an apron, towel and ruler.

Many basic art supplies can be purchased at the UAF Bookstore, local craft stores or online

<https://www.theceramicshop.com>. Buckets, sponges and plastic can be found in the hardware section of Fred Meyers or at any hardware store. There are also many tools available for purchase in the ceramics studio through the Student Ceramic Arts Guild.

Your lab fee for this class covers a reasonable amount of clay, glaze materials and firing. If I determine that you are using more than your lab fees worth of materials you may be asked to pay an additional fee.

* You will be making clay and glazes as a class; no special/personal clay bodies or glazes will be mixed without the instructor's permission. We will have a class bin of clay; you are not to take clay from other student's/class's bins. Clay is only to be mixed during class time or with prior approval from the instructor. When you finish mixing you must thoroughly clean out the mixer and mop the floor.

INSTRUCTIONAL METHODS: This class will include in-person and pre-recorded lectures and demonstrations; in-person and asynchronous on-line group and one-on-one discussions; in class exercises and studio work; and short reading/viewing assignments related to the larger project assignments. Students should expect to spend time out of class completing assignments

This class consists of several sections at one time (201,301,401)

In general, lectures/demonstrations/discussions for each group will be on alternate days. I will be available for questions from both groups every class period, but on each group's off day, students should consider it a work day and work independently on their assignments. We may adjust this as the semester progresses.

In the event that campus closes due to COVID-19 response (or other reason), this syllabus will be modified for distance learning to include pre-recorded lectures and demonstrations; synchronous video and asynchronous discussions; modified reading, written and ceramic assignments.

Students should keep up-to-date on the university's policies, practices, and mandates related to COVID-19 by regularly checking this website:

<https://sites.google.com/alaska.edu/coronavirus/uaf/uaf-students?authuser=0>

Further, students are expected to adhere to the university's policies, practices, and mandates and are subject to disciplinary actions if they do not comply.

The Art Department and/or the Ceramics studio may implement new policies regarding COVID-19 as deemed necessary. I will send an email to your alaska.edu account with any updates. You should check your alaska.edu account regularly.

ATTENDANCE

This is a studio art course and there is a direct relationship between your attendance and your success in this class. You have to put in the time to get the work done. I will be taking attendance during class, but, due to covid precautions, I will not be counting attendance toward your grade this semester. If you feel ill, stay home. If you do miss class time, contact me as soon as possible. You should keep up with any readings, lectures, discussions and all online content. You are responsible for keeping up with your assignments. If you do miss class, you will be responsible for completing your assignments and communicating with me on your schedule.

AFTER-HOURS STUDIO ACCESS: you can access the building on evenings and weekends with your PolarExpress card at the front door of the building(facing the fine arts parking lot) You can be in the studio 24/7, but the key access shuts down between midnight and 7 am.

ASSIGNMENTS/SKETCHBOOK

There will be 5-8 graded assignments for the semester. When I introduce each new assignment I will post an assignment sheet to the google drive explaining my expectations and due dates.

The first group of assignments will focus on introducing you to basic forming and decorating techniques. This will be the foundation for all your remaining assignments

The remaining assignments will be larger in scale/commitment and focus on your visual reference for each assignment. For example: Historic Ceramic Art; Architecture; Objects from Nature. Each one of these assignments can be interpreted in many ways from very functional pottery to purely sculptural, depending on your interest. For each assignment you must plan out your ideas in your sketchbook and go over those ideas with me before you begin. You can utilize any combination of the basic forming techniques to complete these projects.

SKETCHBOOK: For each of these assignments I expect you to devote some time to brainstorming ideas in your sketchbook. Sketch out what you are thinking. These sketches do not have to be great drawings; they are just a way to help you organize your thoughts. Before you start each assignment I will want to see your sketches.

IN PROGRESS/DISCUSSION IMAGES Each week students will be expected to post to a group Google Slide. I will start each week with a discussion prompt. Posts will be due by Monday at 6pm and by Wednesday 6pm, you must comment on at least two other students posts. The new discussion prompt will start each Wednesday.

CRITIQUE IMAGES: On Assignment due dates, students will be required to submit images of work and a short statement to a shared Google Slide. Students will be required to comment on at least two other students' posts.

EVALUATION

CRITIQUES:We will have 4-6 group or individual critiques throughout the semester. You will be notified of any changes in critique times well in advance. You should present your best work from each assignment. Critiques are when I grade your work; they are the equivalent of an exam. Do not miss critiques. It is your responsibility to know when critiques are to be held. You should have your assignment finished and ready for critique at the start of class on critique days. * If you miss a critique your grade for that work will drop one full letter grade and it is your responsibility to contact me about evaluating your work. * Students will photograph all work presented at critique and submit those images (to the group google slide document) before receiving a grade for the project.

GRADING: Assignments will be graded during scheduled critique times. Each project will be evaluated on the following criteria: Completion of assignment; technical skill; progress in skill; effort; creativity; and sketchbook

FINAL GRADE: Each project/assignment will be given a point value. At the end of the semester your grade will be based on the total available points. (Work presented at Critiques is about 80% of final grade with the remainder made up with group discussions, images of work and classroom participation)

A: 93-97%; A-: 90-92% An honor grade; indicates originality and independent work, a thorough mastery of the subject and the satisfactory completion of more work than is regularly required.

B+: 87-89%; B: 83-86%; B-: 80-82% Indicates outstanding ability above the average level of performance.

C+: 77-79%; C: 73-76%; C-: 70-72% Indicates an average level of performance and completion of all assignments.

D+: 67-69%; D: 63-66%; D-: 60-62% Indicates work of below-average quality and performance

F: 59% and below Indicates failure

"C-" (1.7) is the minimum acceptable grade that undergraduate students may receive for courses to count toward the major or minor degree requirements, or as a prerequisite for another course. A minimum grade of "C" (2.0), however, MAY be required by specific programs for prerequisite and/ or major / minor courses. Please consult specific program listings in the UAF Catalog.

<http://catalog.uaf.edu/academics-regulations/grading-system-gpa-computation/>

CLASS PARTICIPATION: Ceramics is a community activity. Through mixing clay and glazes to firing kilns, you will rely on each other to complete your projects. This part of your final grade will be graded in relation to your fellow students. Each time you mix clay, glazes, load kilns, etc. you will earn a point. At the end of the semester those with the most participation points will receive an "A" in participation with everyone else being graded in relation to them. For example, if StudentA has 10 participation points for an "A" then StudentB with only 7 participation points would have earned a "C". Class participation can include any ungraded in-class activity

COURSE POLICIES/GENERAL EXPECTATIONS:

- Clean up when you are finished. This means cleaning off the tables with a sponge, sweeping up the floor if necessary, and putting your work away on the shelf. Make sure to cover the clay bin. Do not put clay down the sink. Do not leave your work on the tables.

- Leave the studio cleaner than when you found it.
- Everyone will be expected to help mix clay and load kilns during the semester
- You are expected to work hard and show progress. To complete the projects you will need to work outside of class time. Expect to spend at least 6 additional hrs a week
- If at any time you do not understand an assignment, expectation or use of equipment, it is your responsibility to contact me.
- Absolutely no clay, glaze materials or equipment can be removed from the building without express permission from the instructor.
- Only currently enrolled ceramics students have access to the ceramics studio. This means no kids, spouses or friends.
- No cell phones during class time.
- No headphones during class time: you must be able to hear me at all times during class time. You may listen to your headphones on work days as long as you can still hear if I make an announcement. No headphones during critiques, demonstrations, lectures or any time I am presenting information. If I feel that it is becoming an impediment to the class I will require that you put them away.
- Respect your fellow students.
- You are expected to comply with the UAF Student Code of Conduct.
<http://www.uaf.edu/catalog/current/academics/regs3.html>
- On the final day of class all work must be removed from the studio and lockers cleaned out. Work and tools left in the studio after this date will be thrown away.

HEALTH AND SAFETY: In the ceramics studio there are materials and tools that may be hazardous if not handled properly. Most notable general clay dust. Every student is expected to help keep the studio clean. All clean up should be done with a wet sponge and water (no dust brooms). Everyday, leave the studio cleaner than you found it. MSDS sheets for all materials used in the studio can be found in the glaze mixing area.

The instructor will instruct you in the safe use of all materials and equipment. This includes mixers, pugmills, kiln, wheels, extruders, drills, grinders, dremel tools, etc. Do not use any equipment that you have not been instructed in the proper and safe use of by the instructor. All appropriate safety equipment must be worn.

ACADEMIC & BEHAVIOR EXPECTATIONS FOR COURSES OFFERED THROUGH THE UAF ART DEPARTMENT

This is a college level course and although UAF welcomes and celebrates students of a wide range of ages and life experiences, a certain level of intellectual, emotional, and behavioral maturity is expected of students who participate in this course. Please read through the following list of expectations. We encourage any student with questions to discuss the course with their instructor.

Imagery: Sexuality, nudity, violence, and war have been central themes in the visual arts for over 40,000 years. Artwork featuring these topics may be included and discussed in this class.

Topics and subject matter: Artists frequently make work about difficult and challenging topics. Students often have strong feelings and opinions about the topics that come up in discussion. The classroom needs to be an emotionally safe environment to explore ideas and students are expected to debate and discuss these ideas in a thoughtful and respectful manner.

Ability to sustain attention: Many studio art courses meet for a significantly longer period of time than what students may be familiar with in high school. Students are expected to participate fully in the entire duration of the course session, to work on assignments outside of class time, and to independently manage course deadlines with minimal reminders from the instructor.

Critical thinking: Students are expected to think critically about their own artwork and examine their own practice as developing artists in the context of written reflections, individual critiques and group critiques. Students are expected to provide and receive constructive feedback as part of the course. Students are expected to think for themselves and not to simply to recite answers they've gotten from a textbook. Students will need to examine their own observations and go beyond simple statements such as "I like it" or "I don't like it".

Time and work ethic: Most art assignments at the college level require a significant investment of time. Students are expected to work independently outside of class and to manage their time on extended projects.

Written and verbal communication: Students are expected to write and speak about their own artwork and the work of others.

Creative risk taking and experimentation: Students are expected to challenge their technical and intellectual abilities and to try new working methods and materials. Students are expected to identify areas of weakness in their artistic ability and seek opportunities to develop new skills to expand into those areas.

Responsibility for health and safety: Many of the studio areas work with tools or materials that have the potential to be dangerous. Students are expected to practice safe and responsible studio practices at all times to protect themselves and others from harm.

UAF Incomplete Grade Policy:

Your instructor follows the University of Alaska Fairbanks Incomplete Grade Policy:

"The letter "I" (Incomplete) is a temporary grade used to indicate that the student has satisfactorily completed (C- or better) the majority of work in a course but for personal reasons beyond the student's control, such as sickness, has not been able to complete the course during the regular semester. Negligence or indifference are not acceptable reasons for an "I" grade."

For more information, see the UAF regulations regarding grades.

Extended Absence Policy

Extended absences are defined as missed classes or course work by students beyond what is permissible by the instructor's written course policies. Students may need to miss class and/or course work for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to: bereavement, personal illness or injury; serious illness of a friend, family member or loved one, military obligations, jury service, other emergency or obligatory situations. For more information, go to the student handbook or the Center for Students Rights and Responsibilities

Academic Honesty: The University of Alaska Fairbanks policies are in effect in this class. Academic honesty is required of all members of a learning community. Unethical behavior such as plagiarism or using others' work without appropriate acknowledgement in presentations, papers, or other course assignments is not tolerated. Research must be conducted in a professional manner; this includes all research-based assignments. Students who fail to follow academic integrity policies may be given failing grades. Plagiarism is the appropriation or imitation of the language or ideas of another person and presenting them as one's original work. If you are uncertain about proper documentation of sources or citations, please discuss this with me. If you quote or paraphrase someone else's ideas, opinions, theories, evidence, or research you must give the source credit.
