Upon request, and as reasonably available and appropriate to the circumstances, the University of Alaska Fairbanks offers various non-disciplinary, non-punitive individualized services called “supportive measures” to complainants and respondents without fee or charge. Supportive measures may be initiated or changed at any time.

Requests for supportive measures may be submitted to the Title IX Coordinator at 907-474-7300 or uaf-TIX@alaska.edu. The following is not an exhaustive list. For more details, go to Board of Regents Policy and Regulation 01.04.070 at http://alaska.edu/bor/policy-regulations/

Safety:
- If you feel unsafe on campus, you may request: increased security and monitoring of certain campus areas; an escort; reasonable limitation of the other person’s access to university locations, services, and/or functions you also access; online directory adjustments; and/or university no contact orders.

Confidential Advocacy Resources:
- Confidential advocacy services and assistance arranging an initial appointment may be available.

Confidential Counseling and Medical Services:
- Counseling services and assistance arranging an initial appointment may be available.
- If you have been sexually assaulted, medical services may be available.

Academic Assistance:
- You may request deadline or scheduling adjustments (e.g., exams, assignments, attendance).
- You may request academic support (e.g., advising).
- A request can be made for you or the other party to be transferred to a different class section.
- Tuition or other fee refunds may be available.

Campus Housing:
- If you live in the same campus housing facility and/or areas as the other party, you may request changes or a set of rules to limit accidental contact (e.g., use of separate doors, housing move).

Work Environment:
- You may request changes to your university work schedule or job assignment.
- If you work in the same building and/or area as the other party, you may request a set of rules to ensure you and the other party do not have contact (e.g., use of separate doors for access or set times for use of shared areas).

Remote/Off-Campus University-Owned or Operated Sites:
- Additional and/or adjusted safety resources/protocols may be requested beyond what is typically provided at remote/off-campus university-owned or -operated sites.
