Course Description:

This course will be focused on the art and techniques of film production through supervised practical work experience, to provide application of course work in a professional film environment. Students will be expected to perform as a member of the film crew as a professional, reporting to the mentor and recording the experience for faculty feedback and confirmation.

Course Goals:

Students will bridge their academic experience with hands-on training in a working film environment.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Student will understand the mechanics of a professional film crew, gain responsibility in their own department, and have an opportunity to reflect on their experience through a public presentation to other students and faculty members.

Attendance:

To be arranged with instructor and internship mentor.

Instructional Methods/Evaluation:

As a professional internship, the student will be responsible for the work assigned on the production crew by the employer/mentor. Student, Mentor, and Faculty member will all sign an agreement contract (attached) prior to beginning internship. Student will be responsible for maintaining a journal or blog documenting the experiences of the internship, as well as an hourly time-log sheet to be signed off on by employer/mentor. Theatre/Film Internship Policy

Introduction

The Theatre/ Film Department's Internship program is an on/off campus professional job experience for which the student receives academic credit. The official title of the course in which the student enrolls is either THR F417 Internship in Theatre Practice or FLM F418 Internship in Film Production or an approved individual study program.

Note: This is a variable credit course, 1-6 hours. Be sure to register and pay for all the credits you need. THR F417/FLM 418 is normally taken for 3.0 credits.

Positions

Firms are selected on a volunteer basis from the commercial and non-commercial theatre companies, film companies, and other media-arts/entertainment producers, both in-state and out-of-state. Criteria for participation of a firm include:

1. A student is available with the interest and abilities to fulfill the job requirements. This is to ensure that employers understand that they will only receive a student who has been screened for the position.
2. Employers/Mentors will not be guaranteed an intern each semester. Consideration will be given first to past participants but students will be recommended only if they are qualified. It is better to leave a position unfilled than to place an unqualified student.
3. Employers/Mentors must be willing to offer supervision and guidance to the student during the term. This is a critical factor since students can easily become lost if left to their own devices.
4. Employers/Mentors must be willing to give verbal reports during the term to the faculty supervisor. Frequent communication is a vital factor in avoiding problems.
5. Employers/Mentors should allow the intern to experience the full range of the firm's activities in the assigned area.
6. Interns should not be relegated to "busy work" or to simple clerical functions on a regular basis. It is understood that at times such activities are necessary.
7. Employers should not expect more that 120 hours from the intern. It may be necessary to allow the student to adjust his or her work schedule to meet academic requirements.

Employers receive significant returns for their contribution to the program:

- A trained, part-time employee at no cost
- The opportunity to assist a student's educational experience
- Development of a pool of trained media personnel
- Possible source of new employees

Students

The internship is limited to advanced students who have completed most of their coursework. While the program was designed for majors and minors, other students may be considered. Criteria for selection of non-majors will be based on a student's interest, preparation, relevance to career plans, and the availability of positions.

Because internships require more time than regular classes, students who are dependant on regular jobs may find it difficult to participate. Compensation for internship work is allowed but may not be specified as a criterion. This is between the student and the employer and is strictly voluntary on the part of the employer.

It should be remembered that the University of Alaska's reputation is directly affected by the performance of the intern. Therefore, no student is recommended for a position unless the faculty supervisor is confident that the student will meet the standards of the program.

Credit

In order to receive three credits of THR F417 or FLM F418 a student must work a minimum of 120 hours. A student must also register and pay for 3.0 credit hours of THR F417 or FLM F418.

Reports and Meetings

1. A student will have an initial meeting with the faculty advisor to discuss internships prior to enrolling in this course.
2. After enrolling the student will meet with a potential supervisor and discuss what the specific internship assignment will be. If the student and professional supervisor agree, the faculty advisor will consult with the supervisor and an INTERNSHIP CONTRACT is written and signed by all three.
3. During the course of the semester, the faculty advisor will contact the supervisor from time to time to discuss the internship.
4. During the course of the semester the student must communicate with the supervisor and faculty member from time to time to discuss the internship.
5. Student must keep track of all working hours connected to the internship, and have an authorized signature confirm work hours daily or weekly.
6. Student is expected to keep a journal or blog chronicling the internship activities and insights. This journal will be submitted to the faculty member prior to receiving a grade. If a product such as theatre reviews, magazine articles, photos, or performance footage resulted from the internship they should be included with the final report.
7. The student will be expected to hold a public presentation of at least 15 minutes in which the student presents their work during the internship.
