C. ESTIMATED IMPACT

WHAT IMPACT, IF ANY, WILL THIS HAVE ON BUDGET, FACILITIES/SPACE, FACULTY, ETC.

No to minimal impact on budget; courses are already a part of current faculty members' workloads; classroom space is currently available. All supporting classes for the minor already exist in the catalog.

D. IMPACTS ON PROGRAMS/DEPTS:

What programs/departments will be affected by this proposed action?
Include information on the Programs/Departments contacted (e.g., email, memo)

Each of the areas with courses included in the minor has a possibility of increased enrollment due to students' interest in obtaining the new minor: Business Administration, Military Science, URSA, Honors Program, Natural Resources Management, Political Science, and Communications.

See attached letter about proposal.

F. PERSONNEL DIRECTLY INVOLVED WITH THE MINOR:

List faculty currently teaching the required and elective (if any) courses, with a brief statement of duties and qualifications.

Nicole Cundiff, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Management and Director, Northern Leadership Center

The following is a list of people who are interested in supporting a leadership minor in their discipline:

- Barbara Taylor, Associate Professor, Biology & Wildlife; URSA Director; Interim Director, Honors Program
- Jerry McBeath, Professor of Political Science & Northern Studies
- Steve Major, ROTC Director, Military Sciences
- Donna Anger, Director UAF Office of International Programs and Initiatives
- Sam Braband, Outdoor Facilities Manager, Department of Recreation, Adventure, and Wellness

G. RELATIONSHIP OF THE PROPOSED MINOR'S OBJECTIVES TO THE "PURPOSES OF THE UNIVERSITY".

Include additional justifying information to support creation of the minor such as projected and present enrollments; need or public demand for the minor; support of other programs by the minor's creation, etc.

The Northern Leadership Center (NLC) is proposing to initiate an Interdisciplinary Leadership Minor for UAF. Our reasoning behind wanting to support such a degree is due to the fact that the National Association of Colleges and Employers (Job Outlook 2012) found that evidence of Leadership experience and knowledge in job candidates was sought after by 77.2% of surveyed employers. An Interdisciplinary Leadership Minor is needed in order to provide access to a majority of the students in the University of Alaska Fairbanks who are interested in getting academic courses in this area. Looking at our peer institutions that have leadership minors, 75% have leadership minors that are interdisciplinary (across multiple schools within the university; For instance, engineering leadership and military science and leadership, and management and leadership at the University of Maine); while only 25% have the minor focused within a leadership studies program. The NLC is the perfect location for such a leadership minor due to its mission to develop leaders from academic, political, and organizational perspectives.

General Education Revitalization Committee (GERC) is redesigning core curriculum for UA and looking for outreach the main leadership classes have components dealing with Outreach and Service Leadership learning, such as networking and learning from community leaders, getting involved in student and community organizations, and hands-on experience with leadership programming.

President Gamble has established five themes for the strategic direction of the UA system. A minor in leadership of this nature could have an impact on the following themes: Student Achievement and Attainment, Productive Partnerships with Alaska’s Public and Private Industries, Development to Sustain Alaska’s Communities and Economic Growth, and Accountability to the People of Alaska. A minor offering leadership development to students obviously relates to student achievement and attainment. When it comes to the themes Productive Partnerships with Alaska’s Public and Private Industries, Development to Sustain Alaska’s Communities and Economic Growth, and Accountability to the People of Alaska this leadership minor format makes impacts through the outreach and service leadership components of the required courses.

Finally, several students have approached Dr. Nicole Cundiff recently interested in getting a minor in leadership if approved, and many students over the last three years have asked about this type of programming and the rate keeps increasing. There seems to be a real need for an Interdisciplinary Leadership Minor at UAF and reasonable demand if one were to become available.
