Course Description

Discussions and activities will focus on how scientists or research technicians evaluate environmental issues. The course is intended for first year college students and community members. Specific topics may include sustainability, resource development, ecosystem management, indigenous viewpoints, building technology, appropriate energy applications, and analysis of data. Topics announced prior to each offering and course may be repeated for credit towards a certificate or degree program to a maximum of 3 credits. (1+0).

Course Goals

- Gain a better understanding of the complexities of a current environmental topic or technique

Course Outcomes:

Upon completion of this course, students will:

- Be able to make connections between society and the ecological system for a specific environmental issue.
- Develop a scientifically defensible point of view on an important issue in environmental studies.
- Be able to explain how they came to gain their view on a specific environmental issue and how it is related to civic engagement.

Instructional Methods:

Course may use one or more of the following methods: Demonstrations, lectures (face to face or distance education), student exercises, supplemental reading or research assignments, and class discussion

Course Calendar

- Course agenda will depend on the topic. The instructor will develop an agenda specific to the course topic and submit it to ENVI Program Coordinator’s approval. The number of lecture hours will be consistent with UAF policy.
- Course will be one credit and last 800 or more minutes of lecture, plus 1,600 minutes of study time.

Expectations of Course Participants

Participants will read assigned materials, contribute to the class discussions, and complete field or laboratory assignments. Reference and reading materials will be reviewed before the class so participants can share their learning and insights during the course.

Evaluation and Grading Policy

Course grading will be Pass/Fail

Students will keep daily journals to summarize presentations, read supplemental material, and will complete a final report.

- 60% — Journal entries
- 30% — Final Project
- 10% — Participation and attendance

Students must receive a grade greater than 70% in order to Pass.

Journal Requirement:

Each student will be required to keep a journal of the course lectures or sessions and make notes on what they learned.

- To complete the course all students need to log at least 14 hours of course attendance and participate for a minimum of 3 days.
- Students will log course participation in a journal. The course journal will be graded based on how well each student articulates what they learned from interactions with speakers and other participants.

Grading Rubric for Journal

	5 (Excellent)	4 (Good)	2-3 (Fair)	0-1 (Poor)
Content	Entries are meaningful, interesting, and help the reader understand student perspectives on content; written details focus on important content	Entries are meaningful and detail course activities; written details help the reader understand topics in interesting ways.	Entries weakly detail content or are confusing; written details help reader understand course content.	Entries are incomplete or unrelated to course content.
Comprehension of Material	Entries show evidence of conceptual understanding; Able to make connections between concepts.	Entries show evidence that conceptual understanding; Can understand most of what was being communicated.	Entries show less than half of the material was understood.	Entries show student did not understand what was being communicated.
Organization	Journal entries are logical and coherent.	Journal entries are generally logical and effective with few minor problems.	Journal entry is somewhat illogical and confusing in places.	Journal entry lacks logical order and organization.
Effort	Exceeds the requirements of the assignment; demonstrates exemplary care and detail	Fulfills all of the requirements of the assignment; shows attention to detail	Fulfills most of the requirements of the assignment; little attention to detail.
