20. IMPACTS ON PROGRAMS/DEPTS

What programs/departments will be affected by this proposed action? Include information on the Programs/Departments contacted (e.g., email, memo)

There will be no measurable impacts on other programs/departments.

21. POSITIVE AND NEGATIVE IMPACTS

Please specify positive and negative impacts on other courses, programs and departments resulting from the proposed action.

This new course should have a positive impact in terms of DANSRD's budget and educational outcomes

JUSTIFICATION FOR ACTION REQUESTED

The purpose of the department and campus-wide curriculum committees is to scrutinize course change and new course applications to make sure that the quality of UAF education is not lowered as a result of the proposed change. Please address this in your response. This section needs to be self-explanatory. Use as much space as needed to fully justify the proposed course.

Alaska has a serious problem with violence in communities throughout the state and Alaska Natives suffer from the highest rates of violence in the nation. Native women and children are most often the victims but men also suffer. There is a need for better understanding of this problem at both the graduate and undergraduate levels as we look at ways to better protect community residents and break the patterns of behavior that allow this to continue.

We realize this is a challenging subject to deal with in the classroom but it is one that must be addressed. Students in the Alaska Native Studies and Rural Development programs cannot expect to implement lasting change in their communities if they do not understand the dynamics of this problem. By offering this stacked course at the undergraduate and graduate levels we will provide students with an opportunity to learn about why this violence occurs and to examine ways of preventing it in the future. We currently have no course in either the ANS or RD programs that covers this subject matter and this new course will fill these important gaps in our curriculum.

COURSE GOALS

This course will provide students:

- Training as to what sexual and other violence is and what the impacts are on the individual and on communities.
- Information about existing or necessary resources for assisting victims, advocacy, and for treating caretaker fatigue.
- Further insights as to what a victim of assault experiences, what trauma is, and considerations when assisting a victim of assault.
- Knowledge of the key laws, policies, and terms applicable to the issue of violence against Native women, particularly in Indian country/rural Alaska.
- Familiarity with victim centered, restorative, and other alternative response/justice systems in use in Indian country.
- Open dialogue to consider or develop viable potential solutions for response improvements.
- Research opportunities and exploration to identify and/or solve a problem in their own region/community.
- Opportunities to advance their ability to properly format a paper and cite sources.

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

At the completion of ANS 467/RD667 students will be able to:

- 1. Summarize the Violence Against Women Act.
- 2. Express the indigenous understanding of the value of women.
- 3. Explain the importance of societal attitudes and its role in violence against marginalized populations.
- 4. Identify damaging social perceptions of Alaska Native people and culture.
- 5. Articulate the obligation of society and the government to protect its citizens.

- 6. Distinguish the characteristics of rural justice violence issues from urban justice violence issues.
- 7. Recognize potential problem areas in state, tribal, and community response systems.
- 8. Locate some community and state resources to address issues of violence.
- 9. Identify and articulate unique problems for the State of Alaska in addressing violence against Native women.
- 10. Locate services and information for trauma fatigue and self-care.
- 11. Utilize at a basic level, Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) resources.
- 12. Express how laws, justice systems, or jurisdictional problems play a role in the protection or victimization of both rural and urban Alaska Native populations.
- 13. Recognize other contributors to violence or actions that may threaten the well-being and safety of Native communities.
- 14. Evaluate the value of self-determination in addressing violence.
- 15. Formulate their own ideas for potential solutions to improve the protection of tribal citizens, and add their voice to this important dialogue.
- 16. Critically review articles and statements regarding violence against Native people.
- 17. Further learn and practice scholarly and ethical research

RD 667 Graduate students will take these tools one step further and utilize their findings to provide written recommendations for policy change to the appropriate institution, governmental, community or service entity, whether it be educational, health care, or law related.

ACADEMIC EXPECTATIONS/COURSE POLICIES:

Academic Integrity: All work developed and submitted in this course must be the student's own. All sources, including ideas, quotations, and paraphrases, must be documented using the DANSRD required American Psychological Association (APA) style. APA style must be used to format papers and for the citations of sources. Plagiarism also includes "self-plagiarism," meaning using all or part of a paper that was written previously for a different class or assignment and failing to indicate that it is earlier work. In addition, material copied from a course lecture or web link but not appropriately cited is also regarded as plagiarism. The discovery of plagiarism will result in a failing grade for the paper and potentially, failure for the course. Students are strongly urged to visit the following websites:

- 1. Examples of Plagiarism: http://www.indiana.edu/~wts/pamphlets/plagiarism.pdf
- 2. University of Alaska Student Code of Conduct:

http://www.uaa.alaska.edu/deanofstudents/StudentJudicialServices/code.cfm

Attendance: It is imperative that students attend every class and be on time. If you miss a class, you risk losing points for attendance as well as for any work or presentation due for that class period. You also will miss the lecture and the opportunity to ask questions. If, for some grave reason, you must miss a class session, out of courtesy to the instructor and your fellow students, please advise the instructor before class that you may be absent.

Participation: Students are expected to participate in classroom discussions and to be prepared. Students must read the assigned materials and bring thoughtful questions to class. It is expected that you will practice effective communications in both speaking and writing.

Competency: It is expected that students will demonstrate an appropriate level of competency in information literacy using skills learned from previous courses to identify, locate and access needed information, and to evaluate content and integrate and communicate information, and to otherwise read and write with college level ability.

Computer Ability: Students must have the knowledge to make efficient use of computers, and of the internet and Blackboard.

Work Habits: While work habits differ from student to student, successful completion of this course requires you to work consistently and keep up with the reading over the course of the entire semester. Undergraduate students (ANS 467) should expect to read a minimum 50 - 75 pages per week. Graduate students (RD 667) should expect a minimum of 100 - 150 pages of reading per week. Set aside a regular time each week to work on this course, and to progress with both your research and your writing.

ABOUT THE COURSE:

Research for the past fifteen years has been extensive in regard to violence against Native women. It was revealed that Native women constitute the majority of abused women per capita in the United States and are the only group likely to be abused by men of any racial group. The figures are staggering, and continue to be alarmingly high. Although research has been extensive, it has not as of late been updated. Other areas gaining more attention and requiring further research are impacts of family and community violence as a whole. The increase in sex trafficking is another growing threat for Native communities, and is a growing threat for young people who make visits to the larger communities.

As communities attempt to grapple with the ever increasing violence, impacts on the community at large and on responders can be profound therefore in this course we will also discuss self-care and the very real personal impact of witnessing or acknowledging trauma. When we can talk honestly within our own tribes and communities about sexual trauma and other violence, then we will be able to effectively formulate long-term and culturally relevant solutions. This is a serious course created to add a step in that direction. To take you there, you will work on a single project throughout the semester.

ABOUT THE PROJECT (467 & 667):

This project will serve as your Mid-term and as your Final Paper. The project accounts for 30% of your grade for ANS 467 students, and 60% of your grade for RD 667 students. Certain aspects of the project will be required at different stages.

The project will include the following:

- A topic proposal
- An outline
- A class presentation (mid-term) with a presentation support paper (may be an electronic document such as a power-point, a video, or other creation)
- A carefully drafted and polished final paper (ANS 467 students minimum 10 pages, RD 667 students minimum 20 pages. Minimums do not include cover pages, policy recommendations (for RD 667), and references.

If the class number is greater than fifteen students, you may be assigned to work in pairs on the project. Should this be the case, the two of you will work on the same subject, but work on different complimentary portions, and most importantly, you will write separate presentation (mid-term), and final papers. You would be required to make the (mid-term) oral/class presentation together, but handling separate parts of the presentation. Note: Pairs cannot include graduate and undergraduate students working together.

The final paper will conclude your own individual work on the project with individual follow-up research, added observations, new discoveries and a developed idea for solution(s) regarding your subject. Your project must involve a critical examination of a real problem and seek a real solution for ending violence in regard to a particular Native population. You are expected to work towards identifying and solving a problem; utilizing and expanding on information garnered from the course. RD 667 students must provide recommendations as a result of their research and direct those recommendations to a particular institution. (This will be further discussed in class).

PROJECT TOPICS PRE-APPROVED FOR SELECTION INCLUDE:

- 1. If a sexual assault occurred on a U of A campus, what would be the process for filing a charge, getting the victim assistance, recovery and other follow-up? Who would the victim initially contact? Now assume the victim was Native.
- 2. A sexual assault of a student occurs off-campus, or while on holiday in another state, or while on a school sanctioned activity in the lower 48 on tribal land, or in a city, or in another country (while the student was registered and in school at U of A). How would a charge be filed? What rights does the victim have? What services are available?

- 3. How does the State of Alaska work with Alaska Native tribes/villages in the enforcement of Protective Orders? (You must select a particular community as your case study, such as Emmonak or Angoon or Tanana for example). What funds are available and actually reach the community? How does the community typically respond to sexual violence? Do they have a tribal court? What needs to be changed? How could it be changed to better serve justice and protection of its tribal members?
- 4. Examine every aspect of what a person who is a victim of DV, SA, or other severe violence may experience in an effort to recover, from the moment the attack occurred through a judicial finding. Use a real location to set your crime, and develop accordingly.
- 5. How does a violent act against a Native woman impact her community, and what can the community/tribe, the State, and the federal government do to end violence against the women in her community? Select a real community, whether rural or urban in Alaska, and develop your question and solution accordingly. Your subject may be based on an actual incident learned from a news article (please discuss with me in advance to consider privacy issues), or a fictional character in a real place.
- 6. Compare two people from two different populations (one of them being an Alaska Native woman), and how they are impacted by violence. What is similar? Are they treated differently, and if so, why and how? What might be the best treatment options? Your subjects may be real (barring violation of privacy), or may be fictional. Their home communities must be real places so that you may better research the potential differences and needed solutions. (If you desire, you may consider the non-Alaska Native person to be from another country).
- 7. Research issues of incarcerated Native women or men, who have committed violence and are survivors of violence. How fast is the Native inmate population growing and why? What rights do they have? Discuss whether trauma informed practices are in place or what treatment they do or do not receive. How would Native based outreach help reduce recidivism? What re-integration programs currently exist? What are other ideas for culturally responsive re-integration, or community justice alternatives over incarceration?
- 8. Research sex-trafficking in Alaska and what you can find out about the increase in sex-trafficking, and about how many victims may be Alaska Native. What is sex-trafficking and why is it a problem? What research has been done? What systems or institutions are addressing the issue of sex-trafficking effects on rural Alaska? What actions is the State of Alaska taking? Who are most at risk? Does VAWA or other laws or policies provide protections? What can you find out about the societal attitudes (both urban and rural) towards the issues of sex-trafficking and prostitution? How does sex-trafficking and prostitution intersect, or does it?

8. Other project topic ideas may be proposed, but must be pre-approved and must meet the requirements for inquiry.

Your project paper should include elements of two or more of the following:

- The role and power of actual damaging or dehumanizing imagery in media, print, and/or relevant identified societal attitudes
- How sexual violence hurts and effects more than the victimized individual
- Barriers that affect the safety of Native women or the obtainment of justice
- Methods for enforcing or ensuring protection of Native women and how that ensures protection of all citizens or tribal members
- An issue of policy change
- RD 667 papers should include policy recommendations.

All papers should include:

 Ideas and creative solutions for curbing sexual violence and improving individual, community, state, tribal or federal responses and, should include some reference and add to global discourse on violence and trauma issues

Research: You should plan to draw upon a number of different sources for your paper. Library/internet, oral histories, and other media may be used.

RD 667 Students may also use oral sources (interviews/oral histories), if IRB trained and/or otherwise approved and if not in violation of UA policies and ethical research standards.

STUDENT EVALUATION AND GRADES

ANS 467 ASSIGNMENTS & EXAMS:

CLASS ATTENDANCE/PARTICIPATION: ANS 467 students will receive .5 point for each class attendance, and .5 point per class participation. Participation means speaking up in class and talking from knowledge gained from the readings. All students start with 1 point since there are 14 weeks in the semester and attendance and participation is worth 15 points (15% of the final grade) for the course.

QUIZZES: ANS 467 Students will take three quizzes throughout the semester worth 10 points each. Quizzes are based on readings and course discussions. This is worth 30% of the final grade for the course.

HOMEWORK ASSIGNMENTS: These are primarily discussion question essays posted on Blackboard that students will be expected to answer and to reply to posts by fellow students. These range in point value from 1 point to 3 points each.

MID-TERM PRESENTATION: All students will be expected to make a class presentation utilizing visual tools such as Power Point. This is the completion of the first stage of the project that the students will work on throughout the semester. (See "About the Project" above). The presentation is worth 15% of final grade for the course.

FINAL EXAM: Students will take a final exam based on readings and course discussions. 467 & 667 will take separate exams. This is worth 15% of the final grade for the course.

FINAL PAPER: A carefully drafted and polished final paper with a minimum of 10 pages.

Minimums do not include cover pages, policy recommendations and references.

Successful completion of this course requires:

- early identification of your topic,
- completing all reading when it is assigned,
- timely completion of all homework (meeting deadlines),
- systematic search for appropriate sources and completion of interviews,
- creatively constructing and clearly articulating your oral/class presentation,
- turning in a clear supportive document to your oral/class presentation,
- reviewing your materials prior to quizzes and final exam,
- properly formatting, writing and polishing your final paper.

TITLE IX BOR POLICY ON DISCRIMINATION, HARASSMENT AND VIOLENCE

University of Alaska Board of Regents have clearly stated in BOR Policy that discrimination, harassment and violence will not be tolerated on any campus of the University of Alaska. If you believe you are experiencing discrimination or any form of harassment including sexual harassment/misconduct/assault, you are encouraged to report that behavior. If you report to a faculty member or any university employee, they must notify the UAF Title IX Coordinator about the basic facts of the incident. Your choices for reporting include:

- 1) You may access confidential counseling by contacting the UA Health & Counseling Center at 474-7043
- 2) You may access support and file a Title IX report by contacting the UAF Title IX Coordinator at 474-6600;
- 3) You may file a criminal complaint by contacting the University Police Department at 474-7721.

Department of Alaska Native Studies & Rural Development Mission Statement

"Our mission is to strengthen leadership capacity for rural and indigenous communities in Alaska and the circumpolar North through degree programs that promote academic excellence, personal development, professional skills, global awareness, respect for indigenous cultures, and commitment to community. We seek to include a keen awareness of the scope, richness, and variety of Alaska Native cultural heritages, and a series of critical perspectives on the historical and the contemporary indigenous experience for all our students."
