PROGRAM IDENTIFICATION:

DEGREE PROGRAM	Alaska Native Studies (ANS)
Degree Level: (i.e., Certificate, A.A., A.A.S., B.A., B.S., M.A., M.S., Ph.D.)	B.A.

A. CHANGE IN DEGREE REQUIREMENTS: (Brief statement of program/degree changes and objectives)

The Alaska Native Studies Department (ANS) merged with the Department of Alaska Native and Rural Development in January 2010. The merged departments are known as the Department of Alaska Native Studies and Rural Development or DANSRD. When DANSRD faculty reviewed the ANS program they found that there was a need for significant revising and updating of the existing program in order to bring it into alignment with the DANSRD mission/goals and to ensure that students have access to a meaningful course of study. The DANSRD mission/goals statement includes making the ANS program accessible via distance learning and changes to the program structure are needed to implement the distant delivery of classes.

To achieve the goal of updating the ANS program, DANSRD has redesigned the ANS core and expanded the existing number of concentration choices from two to four. The old "general" concentration has been replaced with "Alaska Native Forms of Cultural Expression"; the old "language" concentration has been redesigned as "Alaska Native Language." Concentrations focusing on Alaska Native Education and Alaska Native Law, Government and Politics have been added. Also added is the capstone course which provides all majors with an opportunity to synthesize what they have learned. Finally, the minimum number of credits required was changed from 130 to 120. This corrects outdated information and understandings. The original ANS design was based on UAF's 130 credit Interdisciplinary Studies program structure. This modeling is no longer relevant and the proposed changes still allow sufficient elective credits for BA intentions within the 120 credit minimum.

*Note: The name of one ANS core course, ANS 310, has been changed ("The Alaska Native Lands Settlement" changes to "Indigenous Land Settlements") herein. This corresponds with a FORMAT 2A request currently being considered. Also one Rural Development course previously taught as 493/693 is included in the new concentrations here proposed as RD 470/670. This FORMAT 1 change is presently under consideration.

Minimum Requirements for Degree: 130 credits

Alaska Native Studies seeks to provide students with an awareness of the scope, richness and variety of Alaska Native cultures. It offers a series of critical perspectives on the contemporary Native experience in pluralistic North American society. The interdisciplinary academic program is built upon a combination of courses offered by the Alaska Native Studies program and other specialized disciplines.

The Alaska Native studies B.A. prepares students to appreciate historical and contemporary cultural dynamics. The department also welcomes students pursuing a second major or a minor. It encourages students who expect to be involved professionally in Alaska Native communities or other multicultural settings to pursue this degree.

Minimum Requirements for Degree: ~~130~~120 credits

Alaska Native Studies seeks to provide students with an awareness of the scope, richness and variety of Alaska Native cultures. It offers a series of critical perspectives on the contemporary Native experience in pluralistic North American society. ~~The interdisciplinary academic program is built upon a combination of courses offered by the Alaska Native Studies program and other specialized disciplines.~~ The B.A. degree can be earned either on the Fairbanks campus or through distance delivery.

Students develop a concentration in one of four areas: Alaska Native Forms of Cultural Expression, Alaska Native Education, Alaska Native Law, Government and Politics, or Alaska Native Language.

The Alaska Native studies B.A. prepares students to appreciate historical and contemporary cultural dynamics. The department also welcomes students pursuing a second major or a minor. It encourages students who expect to be involved professionally in Alaska Native communities or other multicultural settings to pursue this degree.

Special application requirements and deadlines apply for distance B.A. programs. For more information contact the department toll-free at 1-800-770-9531 or visit our website.

ANS F461-- Native Ways of Knowing--3 credits
ANS F475--Alaska Native Social Change--3 credits
RD 470/670--ANCSA pre 1971 to present--3 credits

Note: Designed for students with an interest in politics, justice, law and other government related careers. Students learn the basics of federal Indian law and policy, tribal governance in the U.S. and the working relationships between tribal and non-tribal governments. Students compare indigenous governments in other countries and examine international laws that affect indigenous peoples. Graduates may find employment with tribal governments, ANCSA corporations, law firms, and state and local government.

(4)Alaska Native Language (not available at all campus locations)

Complete two years study of an Alaska Native language (16 credits) and choose six credits from the following:

ANS F202X--Aesthetic Appreciation of Alaska Native Performance--3 credits
ANL F255-- Introduction to Alaska Native Languages: Eskimo-Aleut-- 3 credits
ANL F256--Introduction to Alaska Native Languages: History, Status and Maintenance--3 credits
ANL F287--Teaching Methods for Alaska Native Languages--3 credits
ANL F288--Curriculum and Materials Development for Alaska Native Languages--3 credits
ANL F315--Alaska Native Languages: Eskimo-Aleut (3) 3 credits
ANL F316--Alaska Native Languages: Indian Languages (3)--3 credits
ANS F300W--Alaska Native Writers Workshop--3 credits
ANS 370--Issues in Alaska Bilingual and Multicultural Education--1 credit
ANS F320W/ANTH F320--Language and Culture: Application to Alaska--3 credits
ANS F461-- Native Ways of Knowing--3 credits

Note: Designed for students who want to speak or strengthen the use of an Alaska Native language. Students who choose this concentration may live in a community where one of the Alaska Native languages is still in regular use, or where the community has a strong interest in reviving the use of their language. In addition to learning a language, students study teaching methods, curriculum development, and techniques of bi-lingual education. Graduates may find employment as language tutors, teachers, writers of Native language materials, oral translators, and with tribal and other organizations engaged in language preservation projects.

Minimum credits required for degree--120 credits

* Student must earn a C grade or better in each course.

 ANS F202X may not be counted toward an Alaska Native studies major if used to fulfill core requirements.

* Student must earn a C grade or better in each course.

 These courses may be used to fulfill the bachelor of arts requirements for a minor complex, or foreign/Alaska Native language option (page 136).

 ANS F202X may not be counted toward an Alaska Native studies major if used to fulfill core requirements.

Note: ANL F255 may be substituted for ANL F315.

Note: ANL F256 may be substituted for ANL F316.

Minor

1. Complete the following:
ANS F300- or F400-level course--3 credits
ANS F401--Cultural Knowledge of Native Elders--3 credits
Alaska Native Studies electives--9 credits
2. Minimum credits required--15 credits

 All minor programs must be approved by the department head of Alaska Native

Studies and Rural Development.

D. ESTIMATED IMPACT

WHAT IMPACT, IF ANY, WILL THIS HAVE ON BUDGET, FACILITIES/SPACE, FACULTY, ETC.

It is not expected that this change to the program structure will have any measurable impact on budget, facilities/space, faculty, etc.

E. IMPACTS ON PROGRAMS/DEPTS:

What programs/departments will be affected by this proposed action? Include information on the Programs/Departments contacted (e.g., email, memo)

Update and revision of the ANS program is not expected to impact any other program or department.

B. Table 4.1 Outcomes Assessment Implementation Summary

	Academic Year
	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
	Assessment information collected	Sampling of student papers Senior exit interviews	ANS became part of the Department of Alaska Native Studies and Rural Development in January 2010. DANSRD began status assessment by identifying the five current ANS majors and determining graduation plans/requirements.
Conclusions drawn from the information collected above and how are faculty collectively involved in drawing conclusions	Unknown	Program strengthening needed to increase number of majors/minors. DANSRD faculty began review of curriculum and updating course content. Courses that ANS students need to graduate are now being offered. Program concentrations are under review to ensure that these meet department goals and student needs. Marketing efforts substantially increased.	Faculty continue to work on updating and adapting course materials for distance delivery. Marketing outreach and recruitments efforts continuing.
Curricular changes resulting from conclusions drawn above	None	NWCCU approval granted to make ANS degree available to students throughout the state by distance delivery. Materials for ANS 425 were updated for delivery via Blackboard and audio. ANS 202, 381 & 401 were updated for delivery in the fall 2010 semester.	ANS 101 is in the process of update. ANS 325, 340 & 348 are ready for delivery in spring 2011

JUSTIFICATION FOR ACTION REQUESTED

The purpose of the department and campus-wide curriculum committees is to scrutinize program/degree change applications to make sure that the quality of UAF education is not lowered as a result of the proposed change. Please address this in your response. This section needs to be self-explanatory. If you drop a course, is it because the material is covered elsewhere? Use as much space as needed to fully justify the proposed change and explain what has been done to ensure that the quality of the program is not compromised as a result.

The existing design of the ANS program is outdated and no longer responsive to students' needs. Some of the courses in the existing ANS core were not being offered by the department with sufficient consistency to allow students to graduate within a reasonable time-frame. The "general" concentration was so general that it did not help students develop a strong focus within their studies but rather encouraged them to wander through their course choices with no particular goal in mind. The old “language” concentration consisted mostly of courses offered by departments other than ANS, which resulted in long term scheduling difficulties. No real course delivery schedule was being followed at the time of the merger with DANSRD, and students pursuing the ANS major had been unable to graduate on time. The changes summarized below correct these problems:

- The new ANS core classes are all offered from within DANSRD, allowing the department to create and follow a consistent schedule from semester to semester. Scheduling of courses will adhere to a three year plan so that all ANS majors will be able to meet program requirements in a timely manner.
- The core classes have been chosen to ensure that all ANS students develop a common foundation of knowledge regardless of which concentration they pursue.
- The inclusion of a capstone requirement encourages students to form connections between the courses they take, and to use those connections to get the most out of their program and to consolidate their knowledge before graduation.
- The concentration areas have been chosen to provide considerable choice for students within the program, all the while retaining the focus needed to realize the DANSRD mission and program interests.
- The core has been increased from 18 to 24 credits. Specific changes include:
 - (a) ANL 315/ANL316 – moved to relevant concentration area
 - (b) ANS/PS 325— moved to relevant concentration area and replaced by ANS 310 in core
 - (c) ANS 347 – moved to relevant concentration area
 - (d) ANS 401 – retained in core
 - (e) ANS/ANTH 242 – retained in core
 - (f) HIST 110 or ANS 101 – HIST 110 (cross listed with ANS 111) moved to relevant concentration areas, ANS 101 retained in core
 - (g) ANS 350, RD 350, ANS 375, and RD 475 (capstone) added to core
- The minimum credits-to-degree needed has been reduced from 130 to 120. This serves to bring the degree requirements in line with other proposed changes and makes the degree more accessible and attractive to students.

DANSRD faculty meets on a weekly basis and regularly discusses program status and proposed changes. These changes have been agreed upon as the most effective way to enhance the program and provide the best possible value to students.
